

Learning Dreams Story Project

Important Places

Join a world wide story project to reveal the nature and complexity of learning and community. We are collecting stories about places that are important to people. Please send us an email with your story as explained below.

Tell us about the place in the world that for you is most meaningful. Think broadly. Let your mind range over your entire life.

Where is the place?

What is it like physically?

Tell about the things you did or experienced there that made it important to you.

How old were you?

Is there a key story or memory from that place that will help others understand why it is important to you? What is it?

Please include in your email:

Your name

An email address where we can contact you

Email your stories to: stories@learningdreams.org

By sending us your stories you agree that we may publish them as part of our story project. Names will not be included.
